

UP IN A BALLOON

A Bride Takes the Ride to the Clouds

BUT IS UNABLE TO DROP

Why the "Professor" Feels Uneasy
When the Parachute Neglected to Shoot Downward.

A young lady was to go up in a balloon and come down in a parachute at the ocean beach on Sunday.

The only half completed her job. The balloon went up all right, and as it left the ground the immense crowd that had gathered to witness the sport sent up a cheer. Then it stood with head turned heavenward, anxiously waiting for the drop.

The balloon reached an altitude of crepe de Chine with a pompadour design of large flowers. The gathered waist opens low at the throat and is trimmed around the neck with a lace ruffle that extends into jets to the girdle. Large sleeves of crepe are banded with ruffles at the elbow and have a lace ruffle below. The wide girdle of crepe de Chine is attached to the skirt and goes above the edge of the waist and the ruffle. Flounces of lace cover the skirt entirely; they are attached under two bias folds of crepe that form a pretty heading. A pictureque hat, from Mme. Carlier, is of cream-white straw, with the front of the brim slit and turned upward. A small white plume is posed inside the front to fall on the hair and a cluster of larger plumes is near the crown. Long white gloves and a red parasol complete the toilet.

Pretty and Stylish Calling Costume.
A graceful calling costume is of sheer white crepe of crepe and violet tulle and trimmed with violet velvet. The jacket has a collar and a yoke of velvet, the latter embroidered with red beads, forming a point in the middle. Below the yoke is a drooping blouse embroidered with beads. The lower edge turned under and attached to a lining. A wide girdle of violet velvet covers the space left uncovered by the blouse and 1,000 feet, but no parachute left it. Two thousand feet, and the same conditions of affairs existed.

A short man who had been assisting in the preparations began to grow nervous. "She ought to come down," he remarked, but she did not. Instead the balloon, woman and parachute continued to sail higher, until it became almost impossible to discern them.

Then the stout man leveled a glass on the collection in midair. A moment later the real reason why she didn't come became known. The frail aeronaut did not possess sufficient strength to cut the umbrella-shaped concern loose from the balloon.

For an hour she floated around in number and then, with parachute and balloon gently descended on a neighboring sand dune. When she struck the earth the stout man was there to receive her. She looked pale and seemed weak and a little scared, but the outstretched arms of the man who had anxiously watched her aerial movements did not escape her notice. The pair were exchanging greetings that were not easily described, but that sweet notes of linen duck, in white, butter-color and ecru, either plain or figured in tiny dots. They are made up with a full, round skirt and with an Eton or recket jacket, which is worn with a silk blouse waist.

At the present moment the favored fabrics for summer frocks are batiste, dimity and lawn - the batiste for those that are somewhat elaborate and the lawn and dimity for simple morning gowns at home.

What is known as the "marquis" is a three-cornered hat of straw or jetted Neapolitan caught up at both sides of the front with a velveteen choux and on the left trimmed with high loops and a full aigrette.

A new sheer fabric is the tamboured organza, which is embroidered in arabesque design in long tambour stitches done in white or a color on a pale tinted ground.

As to sleeves, immense width across the shoulders is seen on every hand. The effect is not raised but sloping, as the mode was sixty years ago.

Two standing loops of velvet, form the trimming:

A new notion for the trimming of dress skirts is a series of butterfly bows about the hem. The effect of this trimming is particularly good, when the material of the costume is shot and the bows are of one of the colors producing the shot effect.

A pretty fancy for summer suits are those of linen duck, in white, butter-color and ecru, either plain or figured in tiny dots. They are made up with a full, round skirt and with an Eton or recket jacket, which is worn with a silk blouse waist.

Danger!

If you have a feeling of oppression and uneasiness a little above the diaphragm, and just below the right ribs aggravated by lying on the right side, look out. As sure as fate, you have probably got appendicitis, perhaps not so serious as yet, but fatal if untreated. Cases are not uncommon. Hostetler's Stomach Bitters is the precise remedy to regulate the liver, and prevent its congestion and inflammation, and to dispense such minor irritations of its derangement as yellowish bile, the skin and belly of the eye, furred tongue, aching head, etc., etc. It is also useful in the morning, dizziness, sick headache and constipation. By relaxing the bowels painlessly, it opens a channel of exit for the superfluous bile, checks tendency to flatulence and engorgement of the liver, at the same time giving a gentle invigorating effect, its secret action, and affords relief to the stomach, which is usually inactive, out of control and oppressed with wind when the bowels are constipated. Use the Bitters freely in fever andague, rheumatism and kidney troubles.

NOTES OF THE MODES.

There are various ways of making the scanty dress skirt of last season as wide as the most vulgar requires. One way is to cut off the top above eight inches, and having passed the bottom with a cordine to cover it with a wide bias of silk, velvet or of fabric like satins or velvets.
